[illegible]

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and a vertical crease down the center. A small, dark, circular mark is visible near the bottom center of the page.

We were in a high-rise. It was a sunny afternoon. We were meeting. All of a sudden it got incredibly silent. Inside. Then the building started to sway. First gently—we didn't know what was happening. Then it really began to sway from side to side so that the materials

In the room began to slam around. All at gravity was pulling the building to the ground. The pressure was unbearable. The entire building swayed and then lunged towards the ground. As we were about to crash, I slipped out a window and onto the ground. I was the survivor. The others were gone with the building. I began my journey to find another dwelling.

Less talented hands have been flooded with computer graphics and design barriers. For the most efforts have yielded rather formulaic results – little compelling evidence of the medium's potential difference in Greiman's productivity to take the same opportunity of her own invention. She does the imagery, but she also developing a fresh, rich picture of words and images
